Communion Fasting

Question: Do we need to fast for one hour before Mass, or one hour before communion?

Answer: The practice of fasting before receiving the Eucharist is a centuries-old act of devotion that was once very different than it is today. In the 1917 Code of Canon Law, for example, anyone who wanted to receive the Eucharist had to fast from midnight until the time of communion (even water and medications were forbidden). Over the following decades, the rules for the eucharistic fast were relaxed, first by Pope Pius XII and, later, by Pope Saint Paul VI.

The current Code of Canon Law (1983) states very clearly: "A person who is to receive the Most Holy Eucharist is to abstain for at least one hour before holy communion from any food and drink, except for only water and medicine" (Canon 919, §1). And, in the case of those who are ill and the elderly, the rules are even more accommodating, "The elderly, the infirm, and those who care for them can receive the Most Holy Eucharist even if they have eaten something within the preceding hour" (Canon 919, §3).

So, if we strictly follow the "letter of the law," the fast is calculated from the time of Holy Communion and not the start of Mass. However, when we remember why we fast — it is a reminder of the deeper hungers of the spirit that our physical thirst or hunger symbolize — we see that the issue is much bigger than simply fulfilling what is called for by Church Law and tradition. Joining fasting to our prayers and reflection before Mass is an opportunity to really center ourselves and to prepare our minds, hearts, and bodies to welcome the One we receive in the Eucharist. ©LPI

From the Desk of Fr. Peter

Happy Easter! Alleluia!

It's hard to imagine what the first Easter must have been like. There were only a small number of people who followed Jesus and they had just suffered a horrible, tragic loss in seeing him die on the cross. They were still feeling the shock waves of his death when some reported the unthinkable—He is risen! The event of the resurrection of Jesus sets Christians apart from the world in a special way. Look around you. There are more people in Church today for one reason. Jesus died, then rose again! You are here and so are they because they believe, they have faith and hope in the resurrection to eternal life. Millions of people around the world have made a special effort to get dressed up and go to Church today to celebrate what their faith means to them. Like you, I wish everyone had a strong faith and a sense of purpose about what to do with their faith. Imagine what our world could be like if everyone worked together to build societies that honored God and put the Gospel values into action! I am reminded that the followers of Jesus were few but they grew in number because they lived a sincere faith and the Lord showed his favor through them. We have the same opportunity. If the world we live in is to grow in holiness and remain a good place to live, then the faith that brings us here must go out with us into our homes, our schools, our places of work, our neighborhoods and wherever else we go. We must be glad to share with other people what our faith gives us. The tomb is empty! Not because his body was stolen but because God raised him from the dead! There are those who would roll the stone back over the entrance by covering up their faith or by denying what really happened. This is a time for us to be grateful for the new freedom Jesus has given us from our old sins and attitudes that lead to a dead end. We have been raised with him in sure and certain ways! As a people of faith, let this Easter be the time when we sincerely rededicate ourselves as baptized disciples of Jesus. He gave us the Gospel and its power! Let our words and our actions show our good will and the Good News of the resurrection!+++ Fr. Peter
