He woke up, rebuked the wind, and said to the sea, "Quiet! Be still!"
The wind ceased and there was great calm. Then he asked them,

EVERYDAY STEWARDSHIP - RECOGNIZE GOD IN YOUR ORDINARY MOMENTS

Waking God

A show of hands, ladies and gentlemen. Have any of you been given the silent treatment and had absolutely no idea why?

On the flipside, have any of you have sworn you're not going to demean yourself by explaining, for the thousandth time, that you need extra help with the kids before soccer practice, or that you feel ignored when your spouse doesn't ask how your day went?

But sadly, love doesn't give you the ability to read minds. And in the end, we learn the lesson again and again, we have to verbalize our feelings, our needs, our wants. Expecting your partner to anticipate your needs is guaranteed to end badly.

It's the same with God, even though, oddly enough, He does have the ability to read minds. But He still desires us to explain ourselves to Him, doesn't He? "I'm feeling scared of this." "I'm really worried about that." "God, I think I need x, y and z. Help me. Please."

Jesus slept on that boat, as it was tossed and turned by the waves, until his disciples woke him. "Why were you sleeping?" they ask. Well, geniuses, he was sleeping because they hadn't woken him up yet. They had wasted time cowering in fear, waiting for him to act. They gave him the silent treatment and they didn't even know it.

God doesn't desire us to verbalize our needs as a way of keeping us submissive. He's not that petty. What He desires is the communication — that's what really counts. That act of opening yourself up, of becoming vulnerable, of relying on Him, trusting Him. If it feels like God is asleep in your life, ask yourself this, have you tried waking Him up?— Tracy Earl Welliver, MTS ©LPi

From the Desk of Fr. Peter

Peace and Grace to you!

Our faith tradition is always an amazing treasure! The readings this weekend capture a representative diversity of situations and sentiments for daily living.

Job has been trying to make sense out of the tragic misfortunes that happened in his life and ultimately concluded that God had not treated him fairly even though he himself had been just and faithful to God. Job feels confused and lost. It is as if a great and terrible hurricane destroyed all that he enjoyed and left him desolate and disoriented. In response to Job's confusion and complaint, God speaks and reminds Job of who He is.

In the Gospel we have five elements to illustrate lessons for us in daily living: the boat, the sea, the disciples, the storm and Jesus. The boat is a frequent object and symbol in Mark's Gospel. It is a small place where Jesus is very close with the disciples and away from the crowds. It also serves as an image of the Church. The boat was a means of transportation by which Jesus and the disciples journeyed together to bring the message of salvation to the world around them. The sea represents the forces of nature, mystery, and when aroused, it represents chaos and the abode of the dead. The storm in classical literature is always related to the human experience of confusion, passion, disorientation, change, loss and sentiments of fear and powerlessness. The disciples are those who are close to Jesus and journey with him in a special way to bring the Gospel to other people in different cultures and towns than their own. This represents ALL the people of the Church. At times, there are challenges and seemingly insurmountable forces and obstacles in the way. Just as for the disciples in the story, there can occur in daily living the whole gamut of thoughts and emotions that are not rooted in the peace of God: a sense of peril, jealousy, anger, resentment and even fear of harm or loss of life. In times such as these, we have to use our faith and call out to God who spoke to Job from the midst of the storm! It is the same voice, Jesus, who rose in the midst of the disciples' peril and spoke to the sea. The sea and all forces of nature obey his voice-- just as the chaos did in the beginning—all our fears and passions too are subject to his power to save. Have confidence in Jesus for he is near and will respond to all your needs! May God bless and save you always!
